

TOGO'S ACCOUNT OF ENGAGEMENT

Of the Japanese Around Sevastopol on December the Fourteenth.

THE BESIEGERS' LOSSES 2,000 MEN

In the Onslaught of Troops Against the Citadel During the Operations Preceding December 10--

Russians in Good Spirits.

SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'NAIL

Tokio, Dec. 19.—Admiral Togo reports regarding the Japanese attack against Sevastopol outside Port Arthur on Dec. 14th. The attack was made at midnight. A shell struck Commander Mitamura's torpedo boat. Four shots hit Commander Nakamura's boat and wounded three sailors.

The flotilla advanced to the attack separately and while retreating one torpedo boat received several shots, her commander, Lieut. Nakahori, and five of the crew being killed. Lieut. Nakahori's boat came to the rescue and had one man killed, but rescued the crew and abandoned the boat to its fate. Commander Kawase's boat was struck by a shell, killing one of the crew and wounding Lieut. Nakahori and two sailors. Lieut. Shono's boat was hit and one of the crew killed and five wounded. The boat was temporarily disabled. All the other boats succeeded in delivering the attack without receiving any damage. The results of the attacks are not definitely known, although it is evident that numerous torpedoes took effect.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—General Stoessel's latest dispatches from Port Arthur include a report on the operations up to Dec. 10 and show that the main line of forts had not been broken at that time. The Japanese so far have used every device of engineering skill in making approaches, but despite enormous sacrifices, have been able to take only the outer line of defenses.

It is declared the garrison probably will be able to hold out a considerable time yet.

The first dispatch is dated Nov. 25 and is as follows:

"I am happy to inform your majesty that on Nov. 20, after an increased bombardment, the Japanese attacked one of the forts on the northeastern front and leaped with a portion of their forces on the parapet. They were annihilated by rifle fire and the bayonet and thrown back into the trenches. Their reserves were scattered by shrapnel."

Effect Passage Between Forts.

"From Nov. 21 to Nov. 23 the enemy violently bombarded the fort and, in spite of great loss, effected by their perseverance, a passage between two forts on the northeastern front.

"At 5:30 o'clock in the evening of Nov. 23, after heavy firing, the Japanese hurled themselves against several works on this fort and seized a portion of the trenches, but they were thrown back by the reserves after a fierce bayonet struggle.

"They returned to the assault at midnight and again occupied a part of the trenches, but were annihilated by our bayonets. At 2 o'clock in the morning all was over and your majesty's heroic troops were able to rest and start repairing the damage caused by the bombardment."

Japs Lose 2,000 Men.

"From Nov. 20 to 24 the Japanese lost more than 2,000 men. All of our troops behaved as heroes. The following especially distinguished themselves: Generals Kondratenke, Nikitin (commander of the artillery), and Gorbatowsky, and Lieutenant Colonel Naoumoff. A dozen other officers died.

Beet Money Help To Weed Growers.

What Editor of the Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter Has To Say on This Subject.

Editor Coon of the "Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter," of Edgerton, who last spring published an article in his paper to the effect that sugar beets are but a passing fancy and would never take the place held by tobacco among even a small number of farmers has been compelled by circumstances to modify his manner of mind. Due to the absence of easting weather there are a large number of growers without holiday trading money, having been unable to dispose of the tobacco crop thus far and in a recent article under the heading "Note Book Sketches" Editor Coon gives sugar beets their due credit for the present prosperous condition of the average farmer in the following paragraph:

"The long continued dry weather extending over a greater portion of the fall, preventing any movement of tobacco from the shed to the warehouse is proving quite a disappointment to growers who are generally able to realize on their tobacco for a holiday shopping and tax paying time.

Capture of Fort Confirmed.

BRITT-NELSON GO IN SAN FRANCISCO

Will Fix Attention of All Prize Ring Followers Tomorrow Evening.

Interest among those who follow the prize ring sport centers in the fight between Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson of Chicago in San Francisco tomorrow evening. While the odds are against him, Nelson has made such a splendid record, is so strong, and can take such a beating that bettors are fighting shy of betting against him. He has "crimped" many pocketbooks in the last six months by beating in turn "Spider" Welch, at Salt Lake, Martin Canole, Eddie Hanlon and Young Corbett.

"On Nov. 26 the Japanese began to bombard and attack fiercely the forts on the northeast front, and the advanced trenches. The trenches repeatedly changed hands. Nevertheless, on the same night the enemy attacked Panling mountain, but were repulsed, as also was their attack on Visokal (Two Hundred and Three Meter) hill.

MANY EDUCATORS FROM HERE TO GO

SYNOPSIS OF PROGRAM OF THE STATE TEACHERS' MEETING.

JANESEVILLE TEACHERS SPEAK

Sup't Buell and Miss E. May Clark on Program—Mrs. Hyde Secretary of Music Department.

In the Davidson theatre in Milwaukee Wednesday morning after Christmas will be assembled hundreds of teachers and professors, men and women educators of the state. In attendance at the convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' association. Among this number will be many from the faculty corps of the high and graded schools of Janesville. This session will open the programs and business meetings of the convention. Committees on enrollment, on resolutions, on honorary membership, on nomination of officers, and on legislation will be appointed. A report from the committee on pensions and the expressions from members of the teachers' work and wages committee will be heard. Among these sub-topics are "Teachers' Pensions and Insurance," "Compensation in Rural Schools," "Service and Wages in City Schools" and "Some Recommendations." There will be a practical demonstration of school room physical exercises and games for pupils of lower grades and addresses on topics of interest to the teachers and those interested in their welfare. Music will be furnished by the Milwaukee Principals' Male quartet.

Reunion and Reception

In the Plankington house arcade and parlors will be held a reunion of the graduates of the state normal schools on the evening of the same day at 7:30 to 8:30. Programs will be arranged and refreshments served under the auspices of the several schools. After the reunion the Milwaukee Principals and Teachers' association will receive the instructors of the state. A cordial invitation has been extended to all who attend the convention and it is expected that this social feature of the annual gathering will be a most enjoyable and pleasurable one for the instructors and instructresses away from home.

Thursday Morning

The election of officers will take place at the general session Thursday morning in the Davidson theatre, the president's address delivered, committee reports heard and several papers read and discussed. Music will be furnished by the Washington County Teachers' association male quartet and a chorus from the sixth grades of the eighth district of Milwaukee. A demonstration of what the deaf can learn will be given by Miss Eva Halliday and Miss Anna Johnson, Wisconsin's Helen Kellers. O. J. Kern of Rockford will address the assemblage on "The Educational Uplift for the Country Child" and a discussion of the same will be made by S. W. Bennett, county superintendent of West Bend. State Superintendent Cary will speak on "The Ethics of the Teacher and the Teaching Profession." Principal of the West division high school of Milwaukee, C. E. Lenagan, will make an address on the topic "The Old School and the New." Reports of committees on securing better rates for the convention and on legislation will be given. The session will close with the president's address. President E. W. Walker, superintendent of the state school for the deaf at Delavan, will speak on "Educational Equilibrium."

Bishop Spalding

The session Thursday evening in the Pabst theatre will probably be the best and most interesting of the convention. An organ recital by Lewis Valentine will open the program. The Treble Clef chorus will render a recital comprising three selections—"Hope" by Rossini, "Spring Chorus" by Wagner and "Good-Night" by Goldberg. Miss Frances Clark is conductor and Lewis Valentine accompanist of the chorus. Bishop John Lancaster Spalding of Peoria, Illinois, will deliver the address of

Dr. W. A. Chase's Nerve Pills.

The man who hesitates, whose eye is dull, whose step is slow, whose mind is sluggish, whose hands tremble, is not the man whom an employer seeks. It is the bright man, the man with the clear eye and brain, the active man, full of energy, life and vigor, whose very manner and presence breeds success that is sought; and snapped up as soon as seen and it seems almost pitiful that the first class, victim of excess of some sort, should exist when it needs but a thorough course of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to round them in to the oft-time feeling of physical, intellectual and manly vigor again. Mr. Fred Hoyt of No. 724 6th Ave., New Brighton, Pa., says:

"I used to have a hand so steady I could write the Lord's prayer on a twenty-five cent piece—then as a result of overwork and overstrain my eyes gave out and my hands and nerves generally became trembly. I was restless and could not sleep, I certainly was in bad shape and lost my ability to write—could just scrawl. I heard of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some and they took hold immediately. I began to sleep—gain strength—my nerves grew steady—and my eyesight improved steadily. Today I feel finely and can again write as well as ever, and that means a very steady nerve."

the evening. His subject is "The Meaning and the Worth of Education." Bishop Spalding is an author and lecturer of great prominence. His selection as member of President Roosevelt's anthracite coal strike commission marked him as a nation character. This is the first time such a distinguished orator and speaker has been secured to address the state association and all non-members will be charged an admission fee of fifty cents.

Department Sessions

On Thursday and Wednesday afternoons will be held the department meetings. State High School Inspector F. E. Doty of Madison, who was in the city recently, is chairman of department of college, normal and high school section and will address those in attendance on "Training for Individuality and Self Direction." The department will adjourn after this address to give place to conferences in history, mathematics, science and language. The departments of which meetings will be held are: State graded school, physical education, music, manual training and domestic science, kindergarten and primary, special education, county superintendents' association, city graded schools, and a joint meeting of county superintendents and county training school teachers. The different topics of timely importance and special interest to the instructors in these separate departments will be discussed, each by two or more speakers.

Janesville Teachers

Several of the teachers and instructors from this city will take active part in the programs and transaction of business. In the history conference of the college, normal and high school departments Superintendent Buell will make a discussion of the speech of W. J. Hecking of the Kenosha high school on the subject "The Topical Method vs. the Textbook in Teaching History in the High Schools." Principal Kluthe of the Oconomowoc high school will also take part in the discussion. Miss E. May Clark, teacher of the eighth grade and principal of the Adams school, will be one of the speakers on the program of the city graded school section. Charles M. Jordan, city superintendent of Minneapolis, will speak on the topic "What the Grade Teacher Has a Right to Expect From Supervision on the Part of the Superintendent, Principal and Departmental Supervisors." The discussion of this address will be made by Mrs. Clark. A portion of the business of the music department will fall in the hands of Mrs. Georgia Hyde, director of music and drawing in the graded schools of this city. Mrs. Hyde is secretary of this department.

Many Noted Speakers

Among the speakers at the meetings, general and departmental, are many famous lecturers, speakers and educators. Mrs. Emma Pettengill will speak on "Cost and Compensation." She has been a member of the Brooklyn school board and while serving us such accomplished the passage of the Pettengill schedule, which raised the salary and wages of nearly every school teacher in that city. She is one of the most active promulgators of the "Living Wage" basis for teachers' salaries. Editor E. A. Whishup of the New England Journal of Education will talk on "A Just Appreciation of the Teacher." George Edgar Vincent, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, Chautauqua lecturer and educational speaker, will address the teachers on "The Socializing of the Curriculum." George H. Maxwell, executive chairman of the league for industrial education, will speak on "Education and Efficiency." Superintendent of schools of Winnebago county, Illinois, O. J. Kern of Rockford, will speak in both the general session and county superintendents' department meeting. Mr. Kern's splendid efforts in his county to better the schools in all ways, buildings, equipments, libraries, beautiful grounds and gardens and his efforts to promote the consolidation of county schools was considered worthy and successful enough by the editors of the World's Work to send a special representative there to report on the work and advance of the Winnebago county schools for an article in the periodical.

Others in Departments

In the departmental sessions many other speakers will give addresses. Some of those on the programs are: Thomas Tappan, professor in the American College of Musicians and editor of the "Musicalian;" Stella Louise Wood, superintendent of the Minneapolis Kindergarten Association; Cornellia O. Bligham, principal of the Chicago Training School for Teachers of the Deaf; and Calvin L. Kendall, superintendent of the Indianapolis public schools.

CARPENTERS' UNION CHOOSES OFFICERS

J. C. Osborn Made President and Chas. Rehfeld Vice President at Meeting Friday.

At a meeting of the local Carpenters' union Friday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—J. C. Osborn.
Vice president—Chas. Rehfeld.
Recording secretary—John Boos.
Financial secretary—Fred Connor.

NEW OFFICERS OF BOWER CITY VEREIN

Of the Germania Unterstuetzungs Verein, Elected at Meeting Held Recently.

Bower City Verein No. 31, Germania Unterstuetzungs Verein, has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Chas. Wolf; financial and corresponding secretary, Geo. Koester; treasurer, Ed. Poenschen; speaker, Julius Tetzlaff; guild, H. Temm; watch, Herman Gerlach; trustee for 3 years, Dr. Cunningham; trustee for 1 year, C. E. Hermann; representative to grand lodge, Charles Wolf; alternate, John Rehfeld; color-bearer, Paul Wolfgram.

REASSERTION OF IDEALS IN NEED

REV. DENISON'S SUNDAY MORNING SERMON INTERESTING.

TWO CITIES ARE COMPARED

"Ideal and the National Life" Was Theme—Text From the Revelation of John.

Yesterday morning at the Congregational church Rev. Denison spoke on "The Ideals and the Nation," choosing for his text the twenty-fifth verse of the twenty-first chapter of the Revelation of St. John: "And the gates of it shall not be shut at all by day; for there shall be no night there." These words of the gospel were referring to the new Jerusalem. They were giving the ideal condition of a city in regard to protection by walls and gates. Rev. Denison compared the ideal city and the city of existence. He gave the three things to which American greatness is due, the principal one being the national ideals and said it is time for reassertion of these ideals that the country may live and be given eternal.

Ruled by Ideal

In short Rev. Denison said: In the last chapters of the Revelation there is a distinction made between two cities; one is the city of wealth, of luxury, of beauty, of commerce, whose streets are crowded with sailors, shipmasters, merchants and artisans, where there is revelry and dancing and mirth and feasting; the end of this city is smoke, fire and ruin. The other city is built of the finest dreams of man; it is not less wealthy than the first, its walls are of sapphire and onyx, its streets are of gold and its gates are of pearl. Within there is peace and joy. In that city there are no funerals, no tears, no cemeteries, no empty places. But it is a city of eternal peace and there shall be no wanting and decay. It shall not be like that city at St. Louis, beautiful and glittering with electric lights, but so pathetic in the shortness of its existence. It shall be lasting.

Dominating Powers

In both those cities there is wealth and beauty and magnificence; yet one is ruled by human lust and selfishness; the other by purity, truth and reverence. One is dominated by passion; the other is dominated by love. There will be no locks in the protection of the scriptures. It shows that the city will be free from all enemies; that there will be no iron hand of the law; that there will be no police because in this city man shall be ruled by the ideal of his own soul. When the people of a nation comes to be ruled thus, then their nation shall become lasting. No city can be made eternal by fortifications, navy or army, by laws or by its schools. American greatness is due to three things. These three make up the composite life of our country. One is our natural resources, our orchards, our iron deposits, our cotton fields and iron works. Another force is the ingenuity and enterprise, the brain power of the American people. The resources were here when Columbus landed, but they lay dormant under the surface of the soil. They had shamed here for hundreds of years until American ingenuity and enterprise aroused them. The last and most important of the three is our national ideals—our spiritual life. These national ideals are mercy, justice and love.

Ideals in America

It is time for a reassertion of ideals. America needs it more than any other country. The president's message is full of sermons of truth, unselfishness and love and it says: It is time for a reassertion of ideals. The great question in American life to-day is: Are the ideals held high enough to dominate these great resources. In England traditions of the place held by the nobility and the respect for this upper class dominate men's minds. In France where on every hand is the legend of liberty, equality and fraternity, there is comparatively little freedom; the people of that country are dominated by a rule of the army or the church. Never was there a people so free from all traditions as the American people. Freedom is the highest achievement and gift to humanity of this nation. The Japs are called the Yankees of the orient but the fundamental tradition of the people of the Island kingdom is absolute allegiance to an absolute monarch. The Jap soldier may be as brave as the Yankee but he is brave under this allegiance, while the American is brave because he is governed by his love of freedom. The courage of one is produced by tradition, the courage of the other by ideals.

Laws and Ideals

If a man cannot be controlled by laws he must be controlled by ideals or he and his people are a force for destruction. There is but one way to have a civilization survive and that is to have men control their selfishness and lust and not infringe upon the rights of others. Man can be ruled by two powers, one the iron hand of the law, the other ideals. When you take out the ideals of hope, of high thinking, of selflessness, there is a need for law. Man when these ideals are absent cannot control himself.

One phase of the life of today is the battle for ideals. The day of the pioneer is gone, the day of the inventor and promoter is going and the day of ideal man is the one that is needed most. Chicago may well be proud of her industry but there is one chapter of her history that is equal to all this. A number of years ago fifty-eight of sixty-eight aldermen were gray wolves. Then came the Municipal Voters' league and reform. The victory of the league was a victory for Chicago because fair dealing was the ideal of the organized voters.

This same battle of ideals is going on in the life of many a man when he starts out in the fight he starts out a man of God or of indulgence, a man of severance or of luxury, and on the issue of this battle depends whether the man becomes a Christian or not. But more, on this same issue depends whether or not he become a true American. These are the men who are dominated by Justice, service and love.

Ideal Making Powers

There have been many who have been idealists, who have lived the lives of Christians. The pilgrims landed on the Sabbath day. They did no work; made no shelters; because they were ruled by reverence for this seventh day and kept it holy. There is a hall of fame, in which are inscribed the names of those who have accomplished something for the good, but in the hall of fame of God, higher than the names of statesmen, soldiers and conquerors will be written the names of those mothers who instilled in the souls of their children the true ideals. There will be written higher than the names of these famous men of the world the names of the men who have fought the battle of ideals and conquered. All honor to the pioneer who opened the west, but we should not forget the missionaries who accompanied them, who furnished them spiritual strength, who instilled the minds of the natives with Christianity. The great contributors are the men who live these ideals, the men who are the true Americans and the men who support the ideal forces. They are found on the streets of the frontier towns, in the cities, in the forests, in the mines, in every phase of life.

Gospel of Christ

In closing Rev. Denison said that the nation without these ideals and the nation not living up to the ideals cannot long exist. He said that the great powers for the teaching of ideals and the teaching of their practice are needed. One of these forces is the church, the great centralization of ideals, because here are taught the ideals and here we are held in their permanent grip, here we are dominated by Him and lifted up by his power. Many lives, in fact the great majority, lack in depth and permanence; many live but to enjoy tomorrow, to conquer tomorrow. We must have interest in the ideals to live them. There must be that unsettling star of dominating interest that we may live up to the standard. Christian radiance is the only light by which this nation shall walk to its eternal strength and peace.

IDEALS IN NEED

In the last chapters of the Revelation there is a distinction made between two cities; one is the city of wealth, of luxury, of beauty, of commerce, whose streets are crowded with sailors, shipmasters, merchants and artisans, where there is revelry and dancing and mirth and feasting; the end of this city is smoke, fire and ruin. The other city is built of the finest dreams of man; it is not less wealthy than the first, its walls are of sapphire and onyx, its streets are of gold and its gates are of pearl. Within there is peace and joy. In that city there are no funerals, no tears, no cemeteries, no empty places. But it is a city of eternal peace and there shall be no wanting and decay. It shall not be like that city at St. Louis, beautiful and glittering with electric lights, but so pathetic in the shortness of its existence. It shall be lasting.

Dominating Powers

In both those cities there is wealth and beauty and magnificence; yet one is ruled by human lust and selfishness; the other by purity, truth and reverence. One is dominated by passion; the other is dominated by love. There will be no locks in the protection of the scriptures. It shows that the city will be free from all enemies; that there will be no iron hand of the law; that there will be no police because in this city man shall be ruled by the ideal of his own soul. When the people of a nation comes to be ruled thus, then their nation shall become lasting.

Ideals in Need

It is time for a reassertion of ideals. The great question in American life to-day is: Are the ideals held high enough to dominate these great resources. In England traditions of the place held by the nobility and the respect for this upper class dominate men's minds. In France where on every hand is the legend of liberty, equality and fraternity, there is comparatively little freedom; the people of that country are dominated by a rule of the army or the church. Never was there a people so free from all traditions as the American people. Freedom is the highest achievement and gift to humanity of this nation. The Japs are called the Yankees of the orient but the fundamental tradition of the people of the Island kingdom is absolute allegiance to an absolute monarch. The Jap soldier may be as brave as the Yankee but he is brave under this allegiance, while the American is brave because he is governed by his love of freedom. The courage of one is produced by tradition, the courage of the other by ideals.

Ideals in Need

If a man cannot be controlled by laws he must be controlled by ideals or he and his people are a force for destruction. There is but one way to have a civilization survive and that is to have men control their selfishness and lust and not infringe upon the rights of others. A commercial traveler who had previously seen this actor in the part invited one of his customers to attend the performance. The merchant was to some extent familiar with the story of the drama, but in doubt as to the ability of any actor to make the transformations so deceptive and complete as to deceive the spectator. At the conclusion of act 1 wherein takes place a startling transformation, he expressed an opinion that two men were playing the part.

The salesman sought to convince him that it was the effort of one man. A sensational and rapid transformation occurs at the end of the next scene and the effect is so startling that the audience is generally held spellbound. The Baraboo man became more decided. "Can't tell me that one man does that, it's two."

The traveler asserted to the contrary.

"But you live?" said the merchant. "Don't want your money," replied his friend.

"But you the drinks then."

"All right and I'll win before the show is over."

The third act finale only fixed the merchant's opinion more firmly. He of the grip and samples made ready.

BRYAN AND THE PRESIDENT.

It has been said that next to Theodore Roosevelt, the man who has gained most from the recent presidential election is William Jennings Bryan.

It would appear that Mr. Bryan himself takes this view of the case. He has just written an elaborate article on the necessity of reorganization of the democracy, and it is noteworthy that he attributes the overwhelming victory won by the republican party to democratic disaffection with the position of the democratic party.

He says that it is only fair to say that Mr. Roosevelt's personality contributed to some extent to the magnitude of his victory. Mr. Bryan thinks the opposition to Roosevelt was increased by the fact that some thought him to be "a reformer in disguise," but Mr. Bryan believes that there is nothing in the president's official career to encourage the belief that he will propose any reforms. He concludes his article by stating that there is every indication that the democratic party will now address itself to the necessary reforms and by securing success lay the foundation for a real victory.

One of the reforms that Mr. Bryan names as necessary is the strengthening of the powers of the interstate commerce commission to regulate railroad rates. But in spite of Mr. Bryan's estimate of the president's willingness to undertake reform, in his first message since his election Mr. Roosevelt has recommended the very thing which Mr. Bryan thinks so necessary, namely, regulation of rates by the commerce commission.

Another reform which Mr. Bryan thinks is necessary is that of the tariff, and it is noteworthy that while the president did not see fit to touch upon this subject in his annual message, it is known that he desires to effect a reasonable revision of the tariff if it is possible to do so within party lines.

The very best reason why the republican party under the lead of President Roosevelt should address itself to the cure of existing evils or the reform of conditions which the people at least believe to be evils is that unless the republican party does this by orderly, conservative methods it will open the door to further radical agitation by men like Mr. Bryan and Mr. Watson, or what is still worse, by scoundrels like Mr. Debs.

POSTPONEMENT IS NOT DEFEAT.

It is not to be taken for granted that because the idea of calling a special session of congress in the spring has been abandoned, the movement for tariff revision has been defeated.

There is no doubt that the high protectionists have been working for delay, hoping thereby to defeat the agitation for revision, and that the postponement of a special session is regarded by them as in the nature of a victory. There is no doubt that next year they will work for another postponement of the subject.

But there are no signs whatever that the president has changed his position in favor of a reasonable readjustment of the tariff, while there is every evidence that the movement in favor of revision is growing in strength every day within as well as without the republican party.

The recent action of the Union League Club of New York City in favor of a consideration of the subject was very significant. It is also noteworthy that many republican newspapers hitherto classed as high protectionists are now urging action in the direction of revision, and many prominent individuals who have hitherto and who are still protectionists, have so modified their position as to be willing to admit publicly the necessity of a change in the tariff. So the movement for revision has not been defeated, and a postponement of a few months may serve only to give it greater momentum and strength.

Mrs. Chadwick is in jail in Cleveland and the sheriff is a hard hearted old fellow who refuses her all the comforts of home and insists she must act just like another prisoner should.

Reed Snoot is having a hard time. This general divorce court proceeding that congress is indulging in makes good listening for the morbid but plays havoc with old Snoot.

This washing dirty domestic linen in the police courts of New York will perhaps save some girls from going the same path to ruin that Nan Patterson has gone.

Emperor William is about to increase his navy by buying a tax upon the rich persons who inhabit his empire. Now is the time to move.

That Port Arthur fleet is being demolished each day one by one and each by all. Still the fight goes on. Doesn't Stoessel know he is licked?

The public have at last wakened to the fact we need a city marshal in Janesville and that William Appleby is the man for the job.

When Boston Beans and Amalgamated Copper really get to it they can beat the late James J. Corbett fighting on paper.

Now that the Japanese fleet is actually in control of the western ocean Admiral Togo can take a much needed rest.

Uncle Sam has done some bragging about that navy of his so his friend Wilhelm is going to do a few stunts himself.

Dr. Chadwick is not at his wife's side where he should be but maybe the doctor is not as foolish as he is depleted.

President Harper gets a Christmas gift from Rockefeller and the common people pay for it.

Christmas shopping is harder work than buying a ton of coal or tending the baby by a good deal.

Jim Hill does not like Roosevelt's message to congress. He would prefer to see a czar issue a royal ukase.

When Uncle Sam starts on that Panama canal job he should be sure and make a good job of it.

Nan Patterson will testify on her own behalf. Nan seems to have been a pretty decided sort of a person.

Col. Greene and Tom Lawson met, shook hands and were friends immediately.

Apparently the rural bankers are still in the market for gold bricks.

FRESS COMMENT.

Evening Wisconsin: There is only a cold-storage freshness in the graft-on-football stories from the vicinity of the University of Wisconsin.

Chicago Tribune: That Swedish prince says he will not marry Miss Alice Roosevelt. Probaby he can prove it, too, by Miss Roosevelt.

Sheboygan Journal: A Nashvile, Tenn., hotel clerk has received $10,000 because he was kind to an old gentleman. He can now wear an aright on his shirt bosom.

Racine Times: If you need money, just go out and get it. Consider the Chadwick; she tolled not, neither did she splur, but she got the coin just the same.

Green Bay Gazette: Suppose La Follette should be nominated for the presidency by the republicans in 1908 and Bryan by the democrats, what would the trusts do then, poor things?

Chicago Record-Herald: Of course no gentleman will complain because he has to stand while each lady in the car fills the seat next to her with twenty-seven bundles.

Superior Telegram: The little boys are taking unusual interest in Sunday schools, and a decided improvement in their behavior is noticed. The little girls are good all of the time.

Chicago Live Stock World: New York protests against an accusation of provincialism but it is merited nevertheless. The prosperity of the country depends on the western farmer far more than on Wall street.

Whitewater Register: Well, well, well. What would the north and the south and the east and the west say if us here in Wisconsin if we should send Bob La Follette down to Washington in Joe Quares' place? But it will never happen.

Washington Star: "I will not be a candidate for senator and run away and leave Wisconsin with burning issues unsettled," says Gov. La Follette. "The rest of the country will probably be able to stand it if he should not be able to leave Wisconsin at all."

Butte Inter Mountain: The surprising thing about it is that men who would detect a five dollar counterfeit bill at first sight can be induced to loan all the available capital of a bank on the strength of a counterfeit daughter of a wealthy stranger.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Mrs. Chadwick threatens to reveal a lot of startling facts about the Shylock methods of bankers in case she is pressed too hard. Considering what is already known regarding the methods of Mrs. Chadwick, however, the public is now in a condition to stand almost anything.

Eau Claire Leader: R. M. Bushford of Madison writes the Milwaukee La Follette organ that Gov. La Follette should be the next senator. This undoubtedly goes for Mr. Bushford and the governor are the closest of friends. Judge Webb, Congressman Esch, Congressman Cooper, Mr. Stephenson and Mr. Conant may haul in their sails.

Appleton Post: According to his Marquette friends, the position of Isaac Stephenson is that he would accept an election to the United States senate, but will not make an aggressive fight for the prize. Unless things have changed radically since Uncle Isaac was first on earth, the result will depend on how much money he put in the "get the legislature" for himself.

Milwaukee Journal: Very significant is the fact that The Marquette Eagle-Star copies from another paper and prints conspicuously an attack on Governor La Follette as a candidate for senator. It doubtless means that Uncle Ike Stephenson has not yet given up hope; it even suggests that he is in a mood to fight the governor. Would be strange, wouldn't it, if Uncle Ike should fall out with the new machine for the same reason that made him an unrelenting enemy of the old machine?"

Milwaukee News: If he can complete his "work" in time, Gov. La Follette will be a candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Quarles. At a reception given in his honor at Toledo, O., the governor took occasion to say: "I am not a candidate for senator unless I can first get matters settled in the legislature, but no man has succeeded in making me say that I will not be a candidate." In other words, Governor La Follette is a candidate for the United States senate.

HALL & SAYLES' STORE ROBBED

BY BURGLAR SANTA-CLAUS AT EARLY HOUR SUNDAY.

OVER $700 IN SILVERWARE

Opera Glasses and Fountain Pens Carried Out Front Door in a Sack—Boldest Job on Record.

Sometime between two and six o'clock Sunday morning the jewelry store of Hall & Sayles at 25-27 West Milwaukee street was burglarized and over $700 worth of silverware, fountain pens, opera glasses, and other merchandise carried away. The firm carries burglar insurance only on the contents of the safe, which was left unopened.

Discovered at Ten

About ten o'clock in the forenoon W. P. Sayles, upon approaching the store, noticed that the gasjet on the easterly side which had been left burning was no longer lighted. Awakening suspicions were confirmed a moment later when he discovered that the lock of the double doors had been sprung and that a small wooden paint-sign which had stood in front of Lowell's store had been carefully laid against the door-sill to conceal the handwork and delay discovery.

By River Street Window

Depleted show-case trays and a litter of tissue paper on the floor greeted Mr. Sayles as he entered the store. He stepped quickly to the telephone to inform his associates and the police, then proceeded with the investigation. In the rear of the large showroom there is a door with two glass panels opening into the storeroom. By a sharp blow which sent the broken glass a distance of eight or nine feet, the lower corner of the pane nearer the lock had been crushed in and a hand had reached through the aperture and turned the key which is always left in the lock. The wrecked circular window which opens onto River street from the storeroom at a height of about ten feet from the sidewalk and a step-ladder from Kent's paint-store, which was leaning against the inside wall, completed the detail of obvious ways and means.

Fancied Bouillon Spoons

Eight pair of pearl mounted opera glasses, several solid silver toilet sets, $10 worth of Parker pens, and a large number of pickle and oyster forks, coffee and bouillon spoons were soon found to be among the articles missing. Two plush bags and three dozen cheap plated lockets and watch-charms, some worth less than fifty cents apiece, were also gone. The total loss was at first estimated at over $1,000, but on more careful investigation this was reduced to a sum between $700 and $800.

Two Men or One?

Failure to discriminate between valuable and cheap ware in the instance of the lockets and charms leads to the conclusion that the job was done by amateur local talent. But the audacity of the burglar in lifting a clock-movement out of a box in one of the front windows, indicated that he was no beginner. It was at first believed that the midnight prowler had an assistant who stood on guard outside, but if this were true the question at once arises—why did he make his exit by way of the front door when the safer and easier method would have been to have dropped the booty and himself out of the same store-room window through which he entered?

Knew Ropes Well

One of the first things the burglar did after climbing through the window and drawing the ladder after him, was to throw the switch on the electrical connections with the rear door which must have started the ringing of a gong which would have been heard several blocks. Almost perfect familiarity with the store was apparent in every move. The fountain pens were put away in an obscure place and otherwise could scarcely have been located in the ten or fifteen minutes which the intruder had at his disposal. The theft of these pens leads to another conjecture—that the party or parties may have been the same that robbed the Parker factory several weeks ago. From the fact that a high stepladder was brought some distance when a shorter one could have been obtained nearby, it is argued that the burglar was a short man measuring about five feet.

Where Police Were

Messrs. Hall and Sayles were in the store until about ten minutes of two. Acting Chief Brown and Officer Fanning passed sometime after midnight, the latter rapping on the window. Watchman Miles Cox came at 10:30 to turn out the window lights according to his custom and was asked to wait until later. Shortly after twelve he again visited the store and when told that the proprietors still wished to have them burn, asked if some one of them would not perform this little task upon leaving the store. It is so arranged that the watchman usually has to turn a button outside of the windows to put out the window lights. Mr. Sayles believes that the burglary was committed about half-past four o'clock when Officer Fanning was at the depot watching the incoming trains. Acting Chief Brown, as is his custom, retired sometime after two o'clock. As has been stated, there was no attempt on the safe which is located in the front part of the store and contains the valuable jewels and money. The safe bears the conspicuous sign "Jeweler's Security Alliance," which is often sufficient to deter even the professional cracksmen. As yet the police have slender clues to work on but it is hoped that the criminal or criminals may be run down.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—Story opens at Gaston, beginning of political campaign with Bucks as candidate for governor. Wm. mayor of Gaston during boom days when town was a nucleus of Western railroads.

David Kent, local attorney, for allusion, entertaining Loring, old college chum, between trains. Loring going to capital to become general manager of road.

Chapter II.—Kent and Loring attend political meeting. Kent's opinion of Bucks, Loring leaves for capital, and train pulls out reminds Kent of an old love affair of Kent's in the east.

Chapter III.—Mrs. Brentwood, and daughter, Ellinor, and Penelope, of Boston, start on their westward Trans-Western route as they own stock in the line. Millionaire Brooks Ormsby, in Mrs. Elmer, goes after Kent to Elior on train.

Chapter IV.—Ormsby makes love to Elior on train. She is in love with Kent. Penelope telegraphs Kent that party is to pass through Gaston. He gets on train to go to the capital and meets them.

Chapter V.—Loring appointed general manager of Trans-Western. Kent advises Ormsby to get Mrs. Brentwood to sell her stock in the line. Miss Portia Van Brock, Kent's friend, and rivals.

Chapter VI.—Bucks and his crowd in charge of state government. House bill Twenty-nine, carrying danger to foreign corporations, including Trans-Western, is introduced by Kent. Miss Portia Van Brock introduces it.

This was the beginning. For the middle part Kent burst out of the telephone box and took the nearest short-cut through the capitol grounds for the street-car corner. At a quarter of nine he was cross-questioning the clerk face to face in the lobby of the Wellington. There was little more to be learned about Ormsby. The clubman had left his key and gone out. He was in evening dress, and had taken a cab at the hotel entrance.

Kent dashed across to his rooms and, in a feverish race against time, made himself fit to chase a man in evening dress. There was no car in sight when he came down, and he, too, took a cab with an explosive order to the driver: "124 Tejon avenue, and be quick about it!"

It was the housemaid that answered the ring at the door of the Brentwood apartment. She was a Swede, a recent importation; hence Kent learned nothing beyond the bare fact that the ladies had gone out. "With Mr. Ormsby?" he asked.

"Yaaas; Ay tank it vill pee dat yem-tiemans."

The pursuer took the road again, rather unhelpfully. There was a dozen places where Ormsby might have taken his charges. Among them there was the legislative reception at Portia Van Brock's. Kent slipped a figurative coin, and gave the order for Alameda Square. The reception was perhaps the least unlikely place of the dozen.

He was no more than fashionably late at the Van Brock house, and fortunately he was able to reckon himself among the chosen few for whom Miss Portia's door swung on hospitable hinges at all hours. Loring had known her in Washington, and he had stood sponsor for Kent in the first week of the exile's residence at the capital. Thereafter she had taken Kent up on his own account, and by now he was deep in her debt. For one thing, she had set the fashion in the matter of legislative receptions—her detractors, knowing nothing whatever about it, hinted that she had been an amateur social lobbyist in Washington, playing the game for the pure zest of it—and at these functions Kent had learned many things pertinent to his purpose as watch-dog for the railroad company and legal advisor to his chief—things not named openly on the floor of the house or the senate chamber.

There was a crush in the ample mansion in Alameda Square, as there always was at Miss Van Brock's "open evenings," and when Kent came down from the coat-room he had to inch his way by littles through the crowded reception-parlors in the search for the Brentwood party. It was unsuccessful at first; but later, catching a glimpse of Ellinor at the piano, and another of Penelope inducting an up-country legislator into the mysteries

WHAT HE WANTED.

New York Salesman Did Not Find It Until he Reached Janesville.

Irving Johnson, a drummer who is well known to many of our merchants in town yesterday, stopping at the Myers, where the Gazette man heard him tell a few new stories that had collected on his last trip.

"I am glad to see," said Mr. Johnson, "that Janesville is right up-to-date in cigars as well as in other things. I have been hunting for a Wadsworth Bros.' Cigars in the last half dozen towns, and did not find one until I went into Smith Drug Co.'s this morning. That cigar is all right, I can tell you, and although it cost only 5¢, yet I push them out to my customers, knowing that they will think it is a 10¢ or two for a quarter."

The Wadsworth Bros.' Cigars is an all Havana filled cigar that smokes just as a clear ought from start to finish, burning evenly with a long, clean, firm ash.

Its flavor appeals to the lover of high grade cigars, and its price to all sensible smokers.

or social small-talk, he breathed freer. His haphazard guess had hit the mark, and the finding of Ormsby was now only a question of moments.

It was Miss Van Brock, herself, who told him where to look for the clubman—though not at his first asking.

Loring had told him Miss Van Brock's story. She was southern born, the only child of a somewhat ill-considered match between a young California lawyer, wire-pulling in the national capital in the interest of the Central Pacific railroad, and a Virginia belle tasting the delights of her first winter in Washington.

Later, the young lawyer's state, or his employers, had sent him to Congress; and Portia, left motherless in her middle childhood, had grown up in an atmosphere of statecraft, or what passes for such, in an era of frank commercialism. Inheriting her mother's rare beauty of face and form, and uniting with it the sympathetic gift in grasp of detail, political and other, she soon became her father's confidante and loyal partisan, taking the place, as a daughter might, of the ambitious young wife and mother, who had set her heart on seeing the Van Brock name on the roll of the United States senate.

Kensselaer Van Brock had died before the senatorial dream could be realized, but not before he had made a sufficient number of lucky investments to leave his daughter the aristress of her own future. What that future should be, not even Loring could guess. Since her father's death Miss Van Brock had been a citizen of the world. With a widowed aunt for the shadowiest of chaperons, she had drifted with the tide of inclination, coming finally to rest in the western capital for no better reason, perhaps, than that some portion of her interest-bearing securities were embalmed with the great seal of this particular western state.

Kent was thinking of Loring's record as he stood looking down on her. Other women were younger—and with features more conventionally beautiful; Kent could find a round dozen within easy eye-reach, to say nothing of the calm-eyed, queenly improvisations at the piano—his constant standard of all womanly charm and grace. Unconsciously he fell to comparing the two, his hostess and his love, and was brought back to things present by a sharp reminder from Portia.

"Stop looking at Miss Brentwood that way, Mr. David. She is not for you; and you are keeping me waiting."

He smiled down on her. "Of what use can I be to Mr. David Kent this evening?"

"See how you misjudge me!" he protested. "My errand here to-night

"Of course!" she said airily. "How simple of me not to have been able to add it up without your help. I saw the quotation in the evening paper; and I know, better, perhaps, than you do, the need for haste. Must you go now?" She had taken his arm and was leading him through the press-in the parlors toward the entrance hall.

"You haven't paid me yet," he objected.

"No; I'm trying to remember. Oh, yes; I have it now. Wasn't some one telling me that you were interested in House Bill Twenty-nine?"

They had reached the dimly lighted front vestibule, and her hand was still on his arm.

"I was interested in it," he admitted, correcting the present to the past tense.

"But after it went to the house committee on judiciary you left it to more skillful, or perhaps we'd better say, to less scrupulous hands?"

"I believe you are a witch. Is there anything you don't know?"

She turned from him and spoke to the footman at the door.

"Thomas, fetch Mr. Kent's coat and hat from the dressing-room." And then to Kent, in the tone she might have used in telling him of the latest breeziness of the member from the Rio Blanco: "I remember now what it was that I wanted to tell you. While you have been trying to find Mr. Ormsby, the committee on judiciary has been reporting the long-lost House Bill Twenty-nine. If you hurry you may be in time to see it passed—it will doubtless go through without any tiresome debate. But you will hardly have time to obstruct it by arousing public sentiment through the newspapers."

He snatched coat and hat from the waiting Thomas and was running like a madman for the nearest cab-stand.

LETTER ABOUT THE NEW YORK MARKET

Status of Affairs There and Review of the Week Past—Changes and Reasons.

Grain.
New York.—Wheat.—It has been an irregular week in wheat. The drought in the Southwest has continued, and there can be little doubt that some damage has been done. Reports from the Argentine have continued conflicting, and at times during the week have resulted in sharp advances, owing to a report from Indians that rust was doing harm in some sections. But toward the close of the week, damage accounts have been denied again, and with the prospects for rain or snow over the winter wheat belt in this country, prices have eased off from the best. For the week they are still slightly higher.

We see nothing calculated to change our views of the market, and think that scalping operations are called for. It seems to us that important western interests are shaping their policy along that line, and going in and out on fluctuations ranging anywhere from 2 to 3 cents a bushel. We cannot help but think that wheat is pretty high in view of the possibility of an end to the Far Eastern war as a result of the probable capitulation of Port Arthur, which seems more to be anticipated now that the remaining vessels of the Russian fleet have been practically destroyed. Still we have no reason to apprehend permanently lower prices, for the immediate future at any rate, and on the whole we think that short sales on bulges should be covered in a conservative manner on any profitable decline.

Corn.—This market has weakened as a result of larger interior receipts, but on the decline met good support not only from covering of shorts but as a result of buying for long account when it was seen that the big arrivals were not grading at all. December shorts in Chicago who had been hanging on in the hope that the influx of grain would shake out longs, became rather uneasy toward the end of the week and covering helped to steady the entire list, which closed only fractionally under the prices of a week ago. We have been advising purchases of corn on brents, believing that it was selling low in comparison with wheat. We have noticed considerable commission house buying recently, and also that good sized short lines have covered to the upbuilding of a long account. We should say, therefore, that technical conditions have altered somewhat and that the market was getting in a position where any sharp advance would bring out liquidation and a renewal of short selling. We are now inclined to reverse our position, and scalp the market on the short side following a sharp advance until something fresh develops. The western movement is becoming heavy and with colder weather the grain will grade better; and with December out of the way shorts will not be confronted with contract maturity for about five months. Oats fluctuated within a narrow range. It is reported that there are plenty of contracts out in western elevators, in spite of light deliveries on contracts, which would seem to indicate confidence in cash circles. The price seems about right to us, and it is nothing but a scalping market, possessing no attraction for speculative operations either way.

Provisions.—Hog products have shared in the irregularity of grain. Live hog receipts are running full, and while there seems to be a good consuming demand there has been considerable pressure against the market from one source or another, and for the week prices show losses ranging from about 2 1/2 to 20 points. Quotations are not too high in our estimation, and purchases around the present level would seem conservative.

Coffee.—The market has shown greater speculative interest toward the close of the week, and a generally steady undertone with prices working up to around 7.35 or 7.40 for the March option.

It seems to us that developments are more likely to be bullish than bearish for the next two months at any rate, and we think that there will be a considerable movement in prices accompanied by increased activity. Our advises from Havre inform us that the trade there are expecting a falling off in receipts just as is predicted by Brazilian cables and looked for also by local trade interests. This falling off will come at a time when the movement of mild grades will be running very materially under last year and when previous hesitancy on the part of interior buyers ought to be leading to rapid decreases in reserve supplies. Lending trade interests here have supported the market this week, and are circulating bullish information.

Previously this season 7.40 for March has proved the turning point, and has been followed by a decline of about 50 to 60 points. We may have some reaction on this occasion, but we would not wait for any material falling off. May around 7.25 or July around 7.45 would seem to us a fair purchase, and likely to yield a profit of half a cent or perhaps fully a cent a pound, even should it show a temporary loss. American trade interests are loaded up with Brazilian coffee. No opposition to an advance will come from them for a time at any rate, and it is hardly likely that Brazil is going to weaken when it is generally understood that Europe must buy freely during the balance of the season. In the event of an advance such as we have mentioned, however, the situation would have quite a different aspect and further developments will depend on the accuracy of present crop estimates.

Yours very truly,
J. S. BACHE & CO.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 19.—Edward Baker fell dead at Lincoln while entertaining a social party with card tricks. His home is in Wayne, Neb., and he had been in the best of health previously.

Jury Inflicts Death Penalty.
Untontown, Pa., Dec. 19.—James W. Ezell, a telegraph operator, was found guilty of the murder of Yardmaster W. G. Porter of Newell, and will hang.

Woke Up a "Dead" One.
The late Dr. Austin Flint once saw in consultation a desperately sick man. Waiting a reasonable time for some one of the family to pay his fee, he sent a bill "To the estate of —— deceased." By return mail he received a letter from the indignant patient denying the allegation.
